

To: John Lancaster, CBC

I have never had anything to do with the death of my sister, Dr. Asha Goel, whom I loved dearly. Others stood to gain enormously from her death, both financially and otherwise. I had absolutely no financial gain which could flow as a consequence of her murder. Since her death on August 23, 2003, I have never been charged with any offence, here in Canada, in India, or anywhere else in the world. The uncontradicted facts clearly establish I was not even in India at that time. These allegations, made by other family members, that I should be investigated or charged, are utterly false and completely without merit, and unsupported by any evidence whatsoever over the past 9 years.

I have been harassed, libeled, and slandered by others which has had an enormous impact on my health and that of my family members.

Ottawa, ON, October 10, 2012

Subhash Agrawal